Naval Debate Is Hot in Britain

AMENDMENT TO NAVAL PACT LOST ON VOTE

Lloyd Baldwin and David Lloyd George Hold Floor of House

CLAIMED PEACE EUROPE ENDANGERED

win Says the Franco-British Pact Averted Geneva Deadlock

Edmond, Nov. 13.—The Liberal amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne, declaring the Franco-British naval compact as "endangering the prospects of Europe and good relations with the United States" was defeated in the House of Commons late today. The vote was 226 to 163.

amendment, moved by Rt. Hon. Lloyd George, Liberal leader, also the basis of naval disarmament, was extension of the successful London treaty to all classes of warships. Further, it urged military restrictions should be included in any future pact, and the foreign policy of Britain should be based on friendship and cooperation between all nations on the lines of the league of nations covenant and the Locarno pact.

of Hon. W. C. Bridgman, first secretary of the admiralty, told the House he believed there was still a chance of reaching an agreement on naval armaments on a basis of mutual disarmament, but that during the next six years, he would have to be satisfied with the extension of the London treaty to all classes of warships. Further, it urged military restrictions should be included in any future pact, and the foreign policy of Britain should be based on friendship and cooperation between all nations on the lines of the league of nations covenant and the Locarno pact.

Gives Stand of Conservative Party in Britain on Preference

MONTREAL, Nov. 13.—"The policy of the Conservative party is that whenever there is a duty there should be a preference, and at the next elections I am convinced that the party will certainly refrain from proposing any new duties on foodstuffs. The idea, thereof a new preference on Canadian wheat must be abandoned unless and until a great change comes over our people. At the present moment it would be impossible to carry out such a proposal and, therefore, it is unwise to revive it."

ONE PASSENGER SAVED AFTER CLINGING TO BEAM FOR 22 HOURS; HARDSHIPS TERRIBLE

Strong Winds and High Seas Make It Improbable That Missing Will Be Found Alive; All of Ships in Vicinity Have Picked Up Some Survivors

The second night after the 328 passengers and crew abandoned the steamer Vestris in a sinking condition, found 206 persons aboard rescue ships, some of which were steaming toward port, 122 were still unaccounted for in an official compilation made by the owners of the Vestris. A lone life raft from the ill-fated steamer, and bits of wreckage that might support other survivors on the wind tossed seas off the Virginia coast were being searched for by rescue steamers.

Dispatches that filtered through the air from rescue ships last night said that six boats had been found and in one of them was the crew from a seventh life boat which capsized.

The battleship Wyoming which had picked up some of the survivors reported through a wreckage tug that all the life boats that were launched by the Vestris had been accounted for, and a message from four destroyers, that also were continuing the search, announced that one life raft still was adrift.

Renewed hope that the additional survivors of the vessel had been picked up was expressed at the Lamport & Holt line office last night when the owners received information that four ships, not equipped with wireless, were on the scene of the wreck. The owners said it was believed likely that these boats might have picked up some of the passengers and crew who had not been accounted for. One of the four ships was said to be under American registry and the other three were from American ports.

Among the rescue ships steaming toward port was the French tanker Myrian, which sent a message that it had on board 64 survivors from the Vestris. This is 11 more than had been previously reported.

RESCUE SHIPS ACCOUNT FOR 206 PEOPLE

(Continued from Page One) were 38 names and it was not clear whether this altered the total or was balanced by a similar change in the crew.

The liner Berlin rescued 23 persons and started for New York, where it was expected to arrive about 8 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The tanker Myrian saved 63 persons and the battleship Wyoming picked up eight. There was one report that a dead man had been found by the Wyoming but direct messages from the battleship made no mention of this.

This would give a total of 217 or 223 from interpretation of the American Skipper reports rescued, and 117 or 112 unaccounted for.

The complete story of the hardships which the rescued must have endured before they were saved cannot yet be told, for the air and all available radio facilities have been needed in the work of life saving. A few bits have come through to indicate

LIB AMENDMENT ON NAVAL PACT LOST ON VOTE

(Continued from Page One) on the question of military reserves. "It was perfectly clear that no progress should be made until they had given way," he said.

"We had to persuade these nations to make concessions. The only way we could hope to progress was by persuasion and therefore we should try to realize the viewpoint of those who were opposed to us."

This might prevent statements which might make the attitude of those countries stiffer than it was now, the premier went on. The premier remarked that France regarded conscription as an essential part of democracy.

"It had often been said that those who entered into discussion on the compromise must know they were courting failure. He did not say why," the premier said. "They were encouraged by observation from the American representatives. During the discussion England and France agreed to facilitate settlement and bring down the Washington agreement from two class limitations to further limitation in the hope that in it might lead to universal limitation of armaments."

NO CONCESSIONS The premier said he could not see that it was not unreasonable that those who had done this would feel that other countries would be willing to accept what France regarded as their concessions. "That view of mine was wrong. No concessions were being made and there was no prospect of carrying the matter any further. The whole work had gone for nothing and they had to begin all over again. There was no mystery at any time about the pact."

"It was not published because the conversations were only tentative. They could only be final when they had been considered and approved and embodied in an agreement by the five powers. When one was still hoping the conversations might show progress, the very worst thing for the conversations was publicity. We might have been wrong in our hopes and expectations but it would have been unwise to make any more publication."

The premier continued that the Anglo-French naval pact was not directed against any nation. It was not even binding unless agreed to by the convention at Geneva. Disarmament was almost as much a matter of the spirit as the letter. When the maximum was fixed in classes of ships, unless statesmen had real courage and were supported by their people, there was a tendency for every country to run up to its maximum as soon as it could and see that the maximum in numbers was the maximum in strength.

"The government does not intend to deviate from the policy of cordial understanding with France," Premier Baldwin declared. "Cooperation only can save Europe from being divided into two camps."

The premier appealed to David Lloyd George in connection with the latter's articles in the foreign press, which he said could only make the government's task more difficult. Indeed they would prevent Mr. Lloyd George, if he returned to office, from dealing with any foreign states.

Premier Baldwin continued by stating that he thought President Coolidge was right in saying that Europe and the United States lacked mutual understanding.

NEED PERSONAL TOUCH American statesmen do not know European statesmen. European statesmen do not know American. There is no personal intercourse. The only intercourse is the written dispatch across 3000 miles of water. It is far more difficult to get a mutual understanding in these circumstances.

ARMISTICE DAY MEANING THEME TRAIL ROTARY

Curran States Celebration Is in Memory of the Fallen; International

TRAIL, B.C., Nov. 13.—Members of the Trail Rotary club attending a luncheon in the Knights of Pythias hall this afternoon were entertained with an interesting address on armistice by W. A. Curran, who was in charge of the program. In the absence of the president, James Buchanan presided.

Mr. Curran explained that an annual commemoration of the signing of the Armistice was not meant to be observed in a vainglorious manner, but was more to renew the memory of the sacrifices made by those men who fell. The observance was gradually taking the form of an international amicable commemoration and was being observed by friend and foe alike, stated Mr. Curran.

Reports from committees in charge of the annual ice carnival were heard.

R. W. Diamond reported on the recent meeting of the community chest.

Chicken en Casserole—Truss a chicken as for roasting, but do not stuff. Put it in a large casserole with this sauce: Melt three tablespoons of butter, cook in this one small onion sliced and two diced carrots, season with a bit of bay leaf, salt and pepper, then add two cups of bouillon. Cook five minutes before adding to casserole. Put on cover, cook 15 minutes at high temperature, then reduce oven to medium hot and continue to cook two hours. Add small pared potatoes and bake 40 minutes longer before serving.

Chicken Loaf—Singe and remove the flesh from a five-pound cleaned fowl, to this meat add one and one-half pounds of lean veal and one pound of fresh pork with some fat. Pass this mixture through the meat grinder, then to it add six soda crackers finely rolled, two beaten eggs, two chopped red sweet peppers, one cup of pecan nuts broken small, and salt and pepper to season well. Moisten with cream or Bechamel sauce and add one-fourth teaspoon of ground mace. With the hands shape this mixture into loaf form and place on a greased dripping pan over a layer of salt pork thinly sliced. Cover top of loaf with more pork slices. Bake 15 minutes in a hot oven, then continue baking two hours with temperature at "moderate." Baste often. Serve with the following:

Spiced Jelly—Cut apples into quarters, not discarding skins or seeds, and put in the preserving kettle with only enough water to keep from sticking to pan bottom. Let cook till fruit is soft, then turn into a muslin bag to drip overnight. Next day measure this apple juice and to one quart of it add one quart of granulated sugar, one cup of vinegar, one tablespoon each of ground cloves, allspice and cinnamon, then cook till it will "jell."

Turn into hot glass tumblers and let become firm. If you do not wish to serve it all at once, cover all but one jar with melted paraffin wax, after jelly becomes cold.

(Sunday's dinner will call for Chicken en Casserole).

Head of Knights of Columbus Visits Nelson Council

Dr. Browne, London, Ont., Says B. C. Needs More Settlers

"I think that British Columbia needs mostly a greater population. It is a wonderful province and there must be innumerable opportunities." Thus Dr. Claude Brown of London, Ont., representative of Canada and Newfoundland on the supreme board of the Knights of Columbus, described his impressions of British Columbia. Dr. Brown, who is visiting local councils of the Knights of Columbus in the province, was in Nelson yesterday. He has visited Trail and Rossland and councils west to Victoria, and will continue east to Cranbrook, Fernie and other western Canada councils.

OPTIMISM, FAITH "British Columbia attracts me very much," said Dr. Brown. "Not only is it a beautiful province, but it is populated by persons of great optimism and faith in their province. Additional settlers, bigger population, would be of inestimable help to the province."

"I have been very cordially received in the west," the doctor asserted. "My own people I might have expected to welcome me, but the warmth of greeting of others surprised me. I noticed particularly the lack of friction between denominations—a very gratifying condition."

"The Knights of Columbus councils in western Canada are in a pleasing condition. They are not, perhaps, as strong in numbers as they might be, but they are working hard in their welfare and service departments, and results so far have been excellent."

Dr. Brown was a guest at the Rotary club luncheon at the Hume yesterday.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

How Hot Rooms Interfere With Nature

You eat all sorts of things that would be poisonous if taken directly into the blood vessels. The different digestive juices in mouth, stomach, and intestine have no trouble in preventing these materials from doing harm. And even if they do get past these juices, then the white corpuscles of the blood help to fight them off.

However, as you know, the organisms of many ailments get into the system through the nose and throat in dust, and from being near the breath or breathing of people already affected.

All these organisms are floating about, and yet only a few individuals seem to get infected, has been a source of wonderment to research men.

Doctors Arnold, Ostrom and Singer, sprayed the mucous membrane—lining of the nose with organisms in 40 normal persons. They made over 400 tests altogether, the number of organisms in each test being 20,000,000.

Within five minutes about 95 per cent of these organisms were dead, having been killed by the mucous membrane of the nose.

In order to find out whether this lining mucous membrane could keep on killing off these organisms, a fresh lot was injected every 30 minutes, and even after eight lots had been sprayed into the nose, the mucous membrane still had the power to kill the organisms.

This certainly shows wonderful protective powers on the part of the lining membrane of your nose.

However, just to show how you can interfere with this wonderful protection given by the nose, these same investigators give some further important information.

Persons placed in a cold room, temperature 45 degrees F., with 30 per cent humidity or moisture, the protective power of the mucous membrane was just the same as in a nice comfortable room, temperature 70 degrees F., and moisture 70 per cent.

However, where the temperature was very hot, 95 degrees F., and the moisture 90 per cent, it took the mucous membrane 10 times as long to kill off the organisms.

You see the lesson. You and I must not have the temperature of a room higher than 70 per cent, if we expect the lining of our nose to kill off these organisms.

What the Press Is Saying

A NEWSPAPER It depends on when you look at it and how. Tomorrow, something to light the morning fire with; today, the link that binds the reader to the world about him.

The purpose of the drama, said Hamlet, "both at first and now, was and is, to hold, as 'twere, the mirror up to nature." There you have the newspaper. It is a mirror which reflects the world; an epitome of 24 hours. It is drama, if you like, but not our western drama, neatly tied into four or five packages each, with a catastrophe, it is rather drama in flux. It is more like those Chinese plays that run on forever and seem to contain as they run a little bit of everything.

A little bit of everything! That is your newspaper. To prove it, look over Fry's Province. What do you see?

A little bit of humor: A Royal City motorist runs over a set of bagpipes and must pay for them; a New Yorker disgusted with Hoover's victory decides to exile himself forever and leaves for Vancouver.

A little bit of tragedy: British airmen crash to death; prairie lad is crushed by wagon.

A little bit of heroism: Chief officer of liner loses his life in effort to rescue a steward.

A bit of color and pageantry: Kyoto in festive array for the enthronement of the emperor.

A bit of the miraculous: Dumb child suddenly speaks to his school fellows; New York patient sees with another man's eye.

A bit of history: Hudson's Bay company's claim to minerals it held two centuries ago denied.

A bit of memory, a touch of pathos: Buy a poppy for remembrance.

A bit of melon cutting: General Motors splits its shares.

A glimpse of grandeur, a suggestion of terror: Mount Etna in eruption; another Pompeii.

A little film-flicking: Citizen loses $102 in card game with a stranger.

A little irony: Sawmill worker makes arrangements to retire to life of comfort and ease; with three hours to go, a log throws him against a saw and that is the end.

A suggestion of politics: Ramsay MacDonald is angry with Stanley Baldwin; Ottawa talking of tariff; government work at Sunas stops; Mr. Manson looks on defeat of his party as a blessing.

A bit of absurdity, a touch of bureaucracy: Canadian soldier declared to have no claim to pay.

A morsel of revenge: Poincaré begged to come back and form a ministry.

A token of appreciation: New Westminster pioneer to receive Native Sons' medal.

Yes, a newspaper is a little bit of everything. The stuff of life is in it. The drama never ends. What is catastrophe to one is triumph for another, and the play goes on.—Vancouver Province.

Health worth more than fortune

Heir to millions

THE baby to be envied is the one who is born with an inheritance of perfect health, to begin with. And who's lucky enough to have a mother who knows how to build up this fortune.

"Perhaps I'm old-fashioned," she'll say to the doctor who pronounces her child physically 100% at a baby show, "but this health certificate means more to me than all the stock certificates in the world. If my baby grows up strong and well, I'm willing to leave it to him to make a career and fortune for himself."

Just try Nujol for your baby. Give it to him regularly for the next three months. See if it doesn't make things much easier for both of you. Certainly it could do no harm—for Nujol contains no drugs or medicine. Your druggist carries it. Be sure you get the genuine. Sold only in sealed packages.

"Already I'm teaching him the value of regular habits. Regular sleep, regular meals, regular functions. He's never once been off schedule, not even when he was cutting teeth or traveling to the country. I make sure of that by giving him Nujol regularly."

Nujol works so easily and naturally that it won't upset a baby under any conditions. It keeps everything functioning properly. It not only prevents any excess of body poisons (we all have them) from forming but aids in their removal. It is safe and sure. Nujol was perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 26 Broadway, New York.

HOPE ETERNAL IS ARMISTICE DAY MESSAGE FERNIE

Union Service in Commemoration Armistice; Urges Keep the Faith

FERNIE, B.C., Nov. 13.—A touching and beautiful Armistice service was held Sunday morning by the combined organizations of United, Catholic, Anglican and Salvation Army churches in the Orpheum theatre. The building was so crammed that many were unable to gain admittance. Robert Billaboro acted as chairman for the 10th consecutive time.

After the two-minute silence and the singing of "O Canada," Captain Buckley of the Salvation Army opened the proceedings with an invocation. Rev. H. W. Oswald, who was a chaplain overseas, gave an inspirational address. It was a matter of regret to him that owing to material considerations, this consecrated day could not always be observed as Thanksgiving. There were things that could not be brought with money, and these were the things for which the war had been fought, and which had permeated and sustained the minds of men during these trying times.

HOPE ETERNAL The speaker reproduced in the minds of his audience that classical picture of "Hope" sitting on top of the world, blindfolded and plucking the one remaining string of her lyre, while listening intently for any faint responsive vibrations from the earth below. He urged his hearers to try to send forth responses to this faith goddess, no matter how futile it may seem at times.

URGES REMEMBRANCE Rev. Bryce Wallace of Cranbrook, who was here by reason of an exchange of pulpits with Rev. L. Best, delivered a ringing and forceful message. He besought the people not to forget the work and sacrifices of the returned men, but to do their duty both officially and individually.

Chief Anderson, himself an officer in the Great War, gave a solo, an interpretation of "Sometime We'll Understand." The last message was that of Rev. Father Bissett. Present conditions as he saw them would lead to a rather pessimistic view regarding those ideals for which the war was fought.

Rev. Mr. Crick Urges Veterans' Duty to Comrades, Dependents

KIMBERLEY, B.C., Nov. 13.—The Armistice day service held in the Orpheum theatre Sunday evening will long be remembered in Kimberley. About 500 people crowded into the building, and many were unable to gain admittance, so great was the crowd that had come to pay homage to the heroic dead. All denominations of the churches were represented and took part in the service. George Noble, president of the Kimberley branch of the Canadian Legion, acted as chairman.

WOUNDS YET TO HEAL Rev. W. J. Crick, chaplain during the war, gave the address, pointing out the significance of the occasion, and stating that although 19 years had passed since the cessation of hostilities, the wounds of war were by no means healed.

The Story of a Social Climber

By LUCILLE VAN SLYKE

Concerning the joys and sorrows

ROSALE BLANCHARD, a pretty little country school m'arn who has many ambitions and CHARLES FERGUSON, her fiancé, whose only ambition seems to be to marry her, and

RONNIE FERGUSON, his middle-aged cousin, who is a teacher in a fashionable boarding school for girls. A sudden attack of appendicitis makes it impossible for her to return to the school so Rosalie cheerfully offers to substitute for her until she recovers. Soon after Rosalie's arrival at Pendleton hall she meets

R. SUYVESANT CONVERSE, a bachelor cousin of Mrs. Suyvesant Perry, who is entering her 11-year-old grand-daughter at Pendleton hall. Converse is a square of a man but generally speaking, rather elderly and finds Rosalie's youthful prettiness and pertness decidedly refreshing.

Against her better judgment she goes clandestinely with him to a supper dance at a smart little country restaurant known as the "Powers' Nest" where she meets a few socially prominent persons who snub her, and a few not so socially prominent ones who tease her. Her escort, after a drink or so too many, goes casually off to another party leaving a friend of his to see that she gets back to the school. But the next day, Sunday, sober, he attempts to apologize to her, when Mrs. Perry takes her home with the little grand-daughter in the luncheon. His apology is interrupted by the unexpected return from the west of Harrison Quimby, Nannette's widowed father. Dick remarks that Rosalie looks like Nannette's mother.

CHAPTER XIV. HEREIN A TEACHER LEARNS SOMETHING ABOUT MEN

Mrs. Perry's quick exclamation as Dick made his little speech was not all complimentary to Rosalie to say the least.

"How utterly absurd of you, Dicko, darling daughter, was the staidest, most beautiful creature that ever walked." She sighed deeply. "Harrison," she added hastily, as she observed that her son-in-law was still staring at their youthful guest, "what a farth is the matter with you today. You act half asleep."

"Very much awake, thank you, in spite of three nights in a sleeper, he responded courteously. "Is luncheon ready or shall we wait in the library?"

Nannette, her hands still damp from washing, came tumbling down the road stairway to clutch at her adored father.

"Not in the booky spot, daddy," she begged impatiently. "Let's show Rosy to our dorable old sitting room—"

He began pulling Rosalie across the hall to a room that was two steps lower than the rest of the house. "It is the sweetest."

The others did not follow them immediately. The pleasant rumble of the car's wheels came faintly as the eager little girl shoved Rosalie into a great, low-ceilinged room.

"It's the very, very oldest part of the house," the little girl boasted, "the rest is quite new, only about as old as I am. But this was my great-grandmother's kitchen. See. There's the old fireplace and her Dutch oven and her kitchen set—Daddy says it is built high to keep the wind out. Cold night but Dick says it is revolutionary petting parties. And one book cases over there used to be cupboards. And those lights by the fireplace used to be funny old ironing pans. Don't you love it? Isn't the sweetest room you ever saw anywhere?"

"It's certainly not like any kitchen I ever saw before," she answered as she stared with frank curiosity about the charming spot.

The original rafters, hand hewn and fully mellowed with age, were so low that a man could touch them. The floor had evidently been replastered in so clever an imitation of old plaster that they blended perfectly with the old wide boards of the floor that had been waxed until it was shining. Over the floor were read quaint hooked rugs.

The only modern looking thing in the room was a grand piano that stood at the end of a alcove, but the rest of the furniture was old and quaint, mostly windsor chairs and butterfly tables, though there was a splendid secretary desk behind whose glassed doors gleamed lustreware. A gay chintz, with sprightly birds and colored hollyhocks printed upon it, served for casement curtains at the tiny paneled window and a wide sofa before the fireplace was summer swathed with the same charming material.

The simplicity of the spot rather startled Rosalie for she had expected a far more elaborate interior from what she had heard about the Quimby's wealth.

"Something of her surprise was in her wide dark eyes as she turned to her host.

"Nannette found all this junk in the attic and we got one of those fool interior decorators to do the spot over for it. She's always been rather hipped on the place. It was her nursery when she was a baby," he said quietly. "Funny thing is that we all drift in here now—for it is comfy—"

"Luncheon is served," announced the butler's voice.

The dining room was on the other side of the house. Here was an austere dignity and grandeur that rather awed the little country schoolm'arn; high ceilings; much heavy mahogany and a gigantic replica of an Italian fireplace.

Luncheon was very pleasant. Mrs. Perry was constantly reproving Nannette for lax table manners. Nannette was rather saucy to her grandmother. Dick perpetually bantered the host, teased the child and openly flattered the rather sly grandmother.

"Darned good thing you came back, Quim," the irrepressible bachelor announced. "Lady Perry here needs a chaperone, she has so many beaux."

Quimby's significant nod at his small daughter did not at all quell his chatty guest.

"You want to watch grandmamma, Miss Rosy Lee?" Dick continued audaciously. "You could learn a lot about wimmin from her."

"And a lot about men folks from you," Nannette giggled precociously. "Dicko thinks he's a knock-out with his, daddy."

Her father made an effort to change the silly tone of the conversation.

"From what part of the country do you come, Miss Blanchard?"

"Just a little bit of an upstate town," Rosalie answered nervously.

"We're nothing but a small village here," her host smiling assured her. "But ours isn't lovely like this. Our houses are all slammed up right together and close to the street—not miles apart like yours, with lovely gardens around them." Her naive honesty charmed him. "And we're nowhere near New York," she added artlessly. "I—I've never even seen New York."

Dick solemnly pulled a combination corkscrew and bottle opener from his pocket.

"Here's the key to the whole city, Miss Rosy Lee," he assured her. "Any time you want to go, you say so and I'll show you all the sights."

"I think," Nannette announced excitedly, "Daddy could show her much more nicely. He takes me on lovable sometimes. Daddy, let's take Rosy Lee next time we go."

Rosalie tried not to laugh.

"Quim's idea of a loveable spree, Miss Rosy Lee," Dick exclaimed, "is the dear old Metropolitan Museum followed by chicken salad and pink ice cream at the Waldorf. You'd learn a lot more about the town if you let me show it to you."

"We'd rather go with daddy, thank you," Nannette's childish assumption that Dick was asking her too, was drool. "Wouldn't we, Rosy Lee?"

Mrs. Perry's patience reached its limit.

"I think it's high time you took that little girl back to Pendleton, Miss Blanchard," she remarked frigidly. "I'll need the sedan back by five—"

"Got your car here, Dick?" asked Mr. Quimby casually.

"Delighted to take them," Dick began eagerly.

"Because," said his host quietly, "you can take Mrs. Perry wherever she wants to go and I'll see that Nan and her teacher get back to Pendleton."

LEAGUE NATIONS HAS AVERTED SIX THREATENED WARS

Rev. Mr. Dredge Tells Rotarians League World's Peace Instrument

EXPLAINS ORGANIZATION AND WORK OF LEAGUE

Kellogg Pact Shows World Thinking Toward International Peace

That the League of Nations has averted at least six wars since its organization, and that the League is the greatest peace instrument the world has yet seen, were assertions made by Rev. F. R. G. Dredge, when he discussed the League of Nations at a Rotary club meeting at the Hume hotel yesterday. President W. J. Meagher presided.

In 1921 Sweden and Finland disputed the ownership of islands in the Baltic sea. The two countries were drafting armies and preparing for war. Great Britain stepped in and said the dispute must be aired at a league conference. The disputants agreed and submitted arguments to the league. The islands were awarded to Finland and war was averted.

BRITAIN'S ARGUMENTS
Great Britain, backing Germany, and France, supporting Poland, very nearly came to blows in 1921 in a dispute over the ownership of upper Silesia, a new country between Poland and Germany. The arguments were taken to the league, ownership of the territory fixed, and the disputing nations reconciled, Mr. Dredge stated.

During 1924 the French territories of Tunis and Morocco were swept by civil war. Britishers, resident in the areas, were conscripted for army service. Great Britain objected and took the dispute to the League of Nations. The world court decided Britain was right. France accepted the decision and again war was averted.

In 1923 Greece and Albania became involved in a boundary dispute. Italy stepped in, some Italians were killed, and Italy became incensed. The council of the league decided that Italy was in the wrong. Italy refused to accept the decision of the council, but it acceded when the world court upheld the council. Again war was averted.

Britain and Turkey disputed the ownership of Mosul, a territory between Mesopotamia and Turkey. Britain exercised mandatory powers over Mosul. The decision of the league council that Britain was right was upheld by the court of international justice, and Turkey accepted the decision. Again hostilities were averted, said the speaker.

LEAGUE ORGANIZATION
The League of Nations consisted of an assembly, a council, a secretariat, an international labor bureau, and a permanent court of international justice.

Three representatives of 55 affiliated nations comprised the assembly, which met annually. Each nation had but one vote.

Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and Germany were the permanent members of the league council. Lesser nations could, at the discretion of the assembly, appoint members who would sit for three years.

The secretariat was the civil service of the league. It conducted investigations and made reports, said Mr. Dredge.

Partly independent, the international labor bureau had been instrumental in averting tremendous labor troubles in recent years.

The court of international justice consisted of 11 judges and four deputies, appointed by the assembly and the council.

PEACE INSTRUMENT
Mr. Dredge declared that if the League of Nations consisted of nothing more than an annual meeting of representatives, it was a peace instrument in bringing these men together and cultivating international fellowship.

A vital principle of the league was that any war or threat of war was a matter of concern to all.

Another vital agreement was to submit any dispute to arbitration, or to judicial settlement by the world court, or to inquiry by the league council. In no case, it was agreed, would disputants resort to war until three months of the league decision. This in itself would be deterrent to war, asserted the minister.

DISARMAMENT INVOLVED
Unless the judges of the court of international justice were unanimous, disputants were not obliged to accept their decision. This might be witnessed, admitted Mr. Dredge, but it was also a safeguard.

Although little had been done toward disarmament, the league should not be criticized. Mr. Dredge contended that disarmament was a complex problem. No two nations had similar problems of defence, and every nation must receive a fair deal.

KELLOGG PACT
The Kellogg pact which was recently signed, and to which Canada was a signatory, would materially assist the league. It condemned all recourse to war and renounced war as a national policy. It set out that agreeing nations should always seek a settlement by pacific means. Although the pact was nothing more than a gentlemen's agreement, it showed in concrete form that the world was thinking toward peace by treaty.

Mr. Dredge found a note of irony in the fact that the United States was not affiliated with the League of Nations, although an American president, Woodrow Wilson, had formulated the basis of the league. Russia and Turkey were the only other powers not affiliated.

"In the League of Nations we have an instrument of peace the like of which has never been seen before. From the viewpoint of fellowship it is one of the strongest organizations in the world today," asserted Mr. Dredge in conclusion.

Billheads and Statements

It used to be the case that the ruling and printing of billheads could only economically be done in the east.

But that is not the case today.

We have the equipment in machinery and the trained staff to turn out any size or style of loose leaf billheads or statement at as low a price as it is done for in the east.

On the whole, we think we give rather better quality, too.

You'll find every one of our billheads perfectly punched to fit the binder. Every one from the first to the last of the order will be of exactly the same size. When the duplicates are transferred there won't be any uneven edges, or sheets running crookedly in the binder.

We sell at the same price as the eastern firms.

England and New South Wales Match Drawn at Sydney

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Nov. 13.—The cricket match between England and New South Wales which was left drawn today continued to be sensational right to the end. Another record was established today when Kippax and Bradman put on 240 in New South Wales second innings, which is the biggest score ever made for this Australian club against England for the fourth wicket. England made 734 for seven wickets, declared, in their first innings, to which New South Wales replied with 349. The Australians followed on and after three good wickets had fallen for 115 runs it looked as if the visitors were going to obtain their first victory of their tour. However, Kippax was joined by Bradman, the 20-year-old hope of Australia, and they proceeded to annihilate the English bowling. They were undefeated when time was reached. Kippax having scored 136 and Bradman 132.

OTTAWA HOCKEY TALENT YOUNG BUT IS PEPPY

DAVE GILL IS AGAIN COACH AND MANAGER

Nighbor Will Be Pivot Man; Old Defence Will Bounce 'Em; Connell in Goal

OTTAWA, Nov. 13.—There is a firmly rooted conviction among the fans of this city carried over from the time before players were paid, that Ottawa boys should be in the majority on Ottawa hockey teams. Ever since the National Hockey league was formed the management of the local representatives of the big time circuit have encouraged this sentiment by having players from the capital predominate but never before to such an extent as this season have the Senators been the product of the school rinks of Ottawa. Frank Nighbor, a citizen of Pembroke, is the only outsider so far, although one other may be added later. The present team is also the youngest that has ever carried the red, white and blue colors in the N.H.L. schedule. Nighbor and George Boucher are the only veterans. Nighbor will be at center with Finigan right wing and Hector Kilrea on the left. Boucher and Frank Clancy will be the regular defence, with Alex Connell in goal. Alex Smith will be the mainstay of the defence subs. The other subs are Len Grosvenor, center and left wing; Bill Touhey, center and left wing, with Stratford last year; Milt Halliday, center with London, Ont., last year; Jack Duggan and Fred Elliott, forwards, and Allan Shields, defence, who started with the Senators last year. Local fans are confident that several real stars will develop from the youngsters. Dave Gill will again be the coach and manager.

Jack Swears This Is a True Storey So It Must Be

HOMER HAZEL OF RUTGERS IN 22, KICKED OFF THE STANDING UNDER GOAL POSTS, WHO FUMBLER, AND HAZEL, ALTHOUGH HE DID THE KICKING, WAS DOWN THE FIELD BEFORE ANY OTHER PLAYER FELL ON THE BALL FOR A TOUCHDOWN IN 20 SECONDS.

By AL DEMAREE (Former Pitcher New York Giants)
Jack Gibbons, who was one of Sewanee's star backs in 1924-25, told me about a peculiar football play, that he says is a true story, and has been vouched for by both teams. While playing with the Sewanee scrubs against Morgan U. he got away on a long run and had a clear field except for the safety man. Jack was carrying the ball like he would a watermelon and when he was tackled on the opponent's five-yard line the ball bounced into the air and lit on the limb of a tree, the boughs of which overhung the playing field. The ball was firmly held by a fork in the tree and had to be shaken down by the referee. "When the ball dropped down," said Jack, "one of the Morgan players caught it and ran the opposite direction, the whole length of the field for a touchdown."

CURLERS ORGANIZING; DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

The "Rajah" of baseball, who has been with three clubs in three years, signed a contract, said to be similar to the one he had with the Boston club. It has two years to run. President William Veeck of the Cubs declined to make public the salary figure, but it is understood to be approximately $40,000 a year with a bonus for signing.

ABRIEL GOING TO PRAIRIE IN INTEREST FRUIT

Will Discuss Situation and the Dump Duties; Confer in Winnipeg Later

KELOWNA, B.C., Nov. 13.—Owing to the necessity of leading officials of the various fruit growers' organizations going east shortly to attend a meeting of the executive of the Canadian Horticultural council, a conference at Kelowna on express rates, and meetings in connection with the Toronto winter exhibition, the British Columbia Fruit Growers' association executive in session here at the weekend, deferred the starting out of the delegation which it was proposed should visit the prairie provinces at once to set forth their views in favor of a dumping duty on vegetables and fruits.

Officials who will go east are Thomas Abriel, president of the B. C. F. G. A., E. J. Chalmers, president and general manager of the Associated Growers, limited, and J. T. Nutrie, president of the Dominion Horticultural council. These three officials expect to be back in Winnipeg about December 3, where they will be joined by E. M. Carruthers, chairman of the growers and shippers federation, and S. W. Duff.

New York Furnishes Al Smith's Sinews

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Analysis of the published figures on the Democratic campaign fund reveals that about two-thirds of all the money contributed by party supporters came from New York state, of which Alfred Smith, Democratic candidate is governor.

Twenty-seven of the 48 states contributed nothing. More than half of the individual contributions came from people in New York city. Only four of the southern states so far have helped to furnish the sinews of war for the Democratic campaign. They are Georgia, Virginia, Alabama and Texas. The rest—Florida, Louisiana, Kansas, North and South Carolina, Arkansas, Mississippi, Oklahoma and Missouri contributed nothing. The list includes no names in the states of Wisconsin or Michigan, very few in the middle western states and on the Pacific coast only Californians swelled the party funds.

Besides New York the most generous supporters of the Democratic party were in Baltimore, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia and Jersey City. The first five represent states which have a large influence in the electoral college.

The jay-buyer

You know the jay-walker—in fact, you've probably burned your tires at one time or another in avoiding him. He crosses the street wherever and however he pleases. He takes intersections on a diagonal. He's never content to follow the regular path. He thinks he's saving time. But is he? The dodging, jumping and backing use up more time than it would have taken to follow the regular path. And he's taking a needless risk.

Mr. Jay-Walker has a brother—the jay-buyer. He always knows a way to buy things cheaper. He knows of a man who sells radios dirt cheap—"makes them himself." He has found a little unknown tire maker—"his tires cost about half what you pay for advertised ones." He's found a way to "beat the price of gasoline." He thinks he's saving money. But is he?

Somehow or other he just can't make his income go as far as Bill, across the way. Yet Bill has the habit of reading advertisements and buying standard goods.

Don't be a jay-walker—follow the advertisements

FISHING STREAMS OF INTERIOR WILL CLOSE TOMORROW ADMIT HUNDRED HOSPITAL HERE DURING OCTOBER

Lakes Remain Open Till Spring; Fishing Through the Ice Illegal

Fishing in streams in the southern interior will close tomorrow. Fishing in lakes, where climatic conditions will permit, will remain open until spring. Fishing through ice is not permitted.

In the Cranbrook, Fernie and Columbia electoral districts fishing for trout will remain closed until April 30. The season remains open on char or bull trout, Rocky mountain whitefish, ling and other coarse fish.

West Kootenay and Boundary streams will be closed from November 15 to May 23 inclusive.

The close season on lakes is from March 1 to April 30, inclusive.

Angling for Dolly Varden trout, char, Rocky mountain whitefish, large mouthed bass, Kokanee chub, ling and coarse fish is open throughout the year. Char is in the same category as trout and may not be caught through the ice.

In Christina lake the use of drag seine nets is prohibited. It has been proven that the Kokanee in Christina lake are one of the most valuable sport fish and the ruling against nets was made on this account.

Patients admitted to the Kootenay Lake General hospital during October numbered 106. With 61 patients remaining from September, and eight births, gave a total of 175 patients during the month, according to the matron's report at a meeting of the board of directors over which G. L. NELSON, B. C.

INTERIOR ONE CENTER GREAT POWER PROGRAM

Development in B. C. Is Gigantic; Three Schemes Adds 218,500 H. P.

NEED OF CONTROL IS NOW TO THE FOREFRONT

West Kootenay Projects Among Biggest in Western Canada at Present

Waterpowers of British Columbia are being harnessed now in the greatest program of electrical development in the history of western Canada, says a Victoria report. Projects already under way or about to start will add nearly 50 per cent to the total electrical output of the province in the next two years, according to plans filed with the government here. And while the production of power thus is soaring at an unprecedented rate, the problem of controlling it by legislative action, under a public utility commission, is forcing itself to the fore just as rapidly, and creating one of the most important issues before the new legislature.

ADD ENORMOUSLY TO PRESENT POWER

Altogether 218,500 horsepower will be added to the electrical supply of the province, now 480,000 horsepower, by current power schemes, the plans now on record here show. This is made up of three gigantic developments and a series of smaller projects.

The great Bride River plant of the B.C. Power corporation will produce 60,000 horsepower as soon as it is opened but this, of course, is only a fraction of the power that will flow from the power site there when it is fully exploited up to 300,000 horsepower.

At South Slokan the West Kootenay Power & Light company is about to throw in a switch on a development of 60,000 horsepower in addition to all its other production.

On the Pend Oreille the same company is ready to go ahead with a plant which will turn out 60,000 horsepower at a cost of probably $4,000,000 to keep up with the continually-increasing drain on its supplies.

Further east, on the Elko river, the East Kootenay Power company is planning to proceed immediately with the construction of a plant to turn out 15,000 horsepower to supply consumers as far east as the Alberta side of the Crow's Nest Pass.

In addition to these major developments, the B.C. Electric Railway company is adding 2000 horsepower to its Jordan river plant, outside Victoria, while 1500 horsepower will be developed by the West Canadian Hydro-Electric corporation at its new plant on the Shuswap river, for consumption in the upper Okanagan valley and surrounding districts.

All these projects are definitely under way for completion during the next two years and are apart altogether from plans still in the initial stage, including pulp mills at Prince George, Campbell river and the Nimpkish river, which will develop power on a large scale for their own operations.

COST WILL BE $10,000,000

The final cost of this program, which covers most of the province, is difficult to estimate, but it is expected to run into more than $10,000,000 before it is completed.

While private interests thus are busy harnessing the province's waterpowers on an unprecedented scale, the problem of controlling their operations and protecting the consumers of electricity is becoming increasingly evident here. Probably it will form one of the main themes of discussion when the legislature meets early next year.

Definite demand will be made at this session for the creation of a public utilities commission without further delay. The Union of B.C. Municipalities is sponsoring this proposal but, as a matter of fact, the need of some machinery of this kind has been realized at the capital for years. Only the fact that an election was pending and a large mass of miscellaneous business requiring attention prevented the public utilities commission, issues from forcing action by the house at its last session. Since then the demand for a commission has reached such proportions that it cannot longer be left unanswered, in the general opinion at the capital.

Since the house met last three important developments have focused public attention on this question. First and most important the sale of the B.C. Electric Railway company, with an enormous increase in its capitalization; second, the dispute between the West Kootenay Power company and some of its chief consumers, which has kept the southern interior in a state of anxiety most of this year, and, third, the clash between the Victoria city authorities and the B.C. Electric railway over power rates, with the city threatening to develop its own power if it can not get satisfaction from the power company.

CHARTERS ARE COMPLICATED

In addition to all these difficulties, the complicated condition of power charters embraced in the new union of Greater Vancouver appears to officials here to demand some new form of centralized control to put the city's future power rates on a satisfactory basis.

The stage thus is all set for a real threshing out of one of the province's major problems when the legislature meets, but that the government will launch a public utility commission immediately is considered doubtful. No decision on the point has been reached yet, but the new administration is facing so many questions and such a mass of business that it is hardly expected to embark on such a program before 1930.
