BLAKE IN BOSTON.

CANADA'S ORATOR APPEALING FOR FUNDS AT THE HUB.

He Had a Most Enthusiastic Audience—Round After Round of Applause Greeted Him—The Honorable Gentleman Explains Why Parliament Does Not Dissolve—He Regrets Having to Ask Them for Money in These Hard Times—But it is His Last Opportunity Before Returning to the Hard Struggle.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 21.—In response to an invitation from many prominent Irish-American citizens of this city, the Hon. Edward Blake, M.P. spoke in the Music Hall upon the present state of the Home Rule for Ireland. The hall was filled with an enthusiastic audience. Mr. Blake was received with round after round of applause and as he proceeded with his address, he was frequently interrupted by loud expressions of approval.

The Names of Parnell and Gladstone were greeted with applause. Mr. Blake, after reviewing the events which had happened in Irish politics since he spoke in Boston a year ago, confused himself principally to a discussion of the provisions and objects of the Home Rule bill and the autonomous features of the measure. He declared that there need be no fear that the opposition of the Lords would prove a permanent barrier to Home Rule. The wisest of them do not pretend that they will have any right to disregard the measure when it shall be brought forward by the country again. The reason why the bill would not be introduced again in this parliament and before an election was, because

The Lords would promptly reject it until it had been determined by the people at a general election. Again, one reason why immediate dissolution is not demanded is, because such a course is favored by the Opposition. Then too, the Liberals and Radicals who did their duty by the bill have other measures in hand, which their allies, the Irish Nationalists, must respect and aid.

As Parnell in 1881 predicted, the suffrage has been widened and the alliance with the British Democracy demands our fealty. If we should refuse to assist in their reforms, should we deserve their help in bringing about Home Rule for Ireland? The speaker then elaborated the propositions of the Home Rule Bill which need not be recounted, and emphasized the advantages. Referring to "Castle" control in the rural districts, he said that in five Counties having a population of and 78,000 protestants, there were two Roman Catholic grand jurors and 114 protestants. Irish Nationalists intend first, to settle their own differences, to maintain so long as the Liberals and Radicals are faithful to the pledges the alliance which Mr. Parnell formed with these two parties. We will co-operate with them but will not identify ourselves with them. In conclusion he said that the Irish cause depended to-day as it had done in the past, largely upon the sympathy of the liberty loving people of the world. The friends of Ireland had quit sending money to that country merely but now contributed it instead to the National movement. "We require for this year," he said, "about $240,000, of which $45,000 is needed for the payment of allowances to members. While some of us can maintain ourselves by our own exertions, while we sit in Parliament, the majority are not wealthy, and must sacrifice everything. We require $45,000 towards the general election expenses. Out of the total of $172,500 which came to the party last year,

Ireland Contributed Over $99,000, while the Irish abroad contributed $73,500. In several quarters in the States, notably in the state of Massachusetts, liberal contributions were made; but the aggregate contributed from the States was $43,000 only, while Canada sent $11,200 with probably only one-fiftieth or one-sixtieth of the wealth of the States. May we not hope that

12,000,000 Irish Americans

here will give $150,000 when they see plainly set before them the reasons and object of the requests. I know that this is not a time for collections in this country. I deplore for your sakes, even more than for our own, the sad circumstances which render it unfitting to propose immediate collections here. I do so because it is the last opportunity which is open to me and because I feel that such a statement will afford a basis for action when the proper time arrives. It will be for those of this generation a source of pride and pleasure in the days to come, when the struggle shall be over, when the result shall be obtained, to be able to say that they stood steadfast to the cause and that their resolution, determination and self-sacrifice materially contributed to such a noble issue."

Before Returning to the Struggle

Mrs. Faessler Flagellated.

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 31.—To-day Mrs. Faessler went into the store of her husband on Washington street with a big horse whip under her shawl, and was proceeding to castigate her better half in good shape, when some one managed to get the whip from her; officers were called in and the infuriated woman was led off to the city prison screaming. She was begging for her whip and shouting that her husband had her money. Mr. Faessler says that there has been trouble between himself and his wife for some time, and that divorce proceedings are pending. He says that his wife is crazy.

ASTOR'S ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Pall Mall Gazette Stirs Up an Excitement—Says Gladstone Will Retire.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The Daily News refers editorially to the Pall Mall Gazette editorial about Mr. Gladstone's alleged intention to resign as a "silly hoax," an "essay in thought reading," a "practical joke" and a "gross indiscretion." After remarking Mr. Gladstone's courtesy in giving a careful, conscientious denial, while omitting the well-deserved reproach which most persons would have administered, the News says: He says only what he has said of on previous years. His last word is of the duties that lie before him, not of his wishes. For the rest, since he assures us that he has done nothing to restrain the freedom of himself or his colleagues for the performance of those duties, the world may be sure that he has no thought of quitting his place at the head of the Liberals.

The Standard regards the statement authorized by Mr. Gladstone as of the highest import. "Its effect upon the fortunes of the ministry and its programme," says this high Tory daily, cannot fail to be most damaging and discouraging to his colleagues. They are left virtually without a head, their leader holding himself at liberty to retire at a moment's notice. A Gladstonian ministry with Gladstone on the shelf is an absurdity as well as a constitutional anomaly. We have this consolation—the position cannot be prolonged.

Mr. Lytleton, Mr. Gladstone's secretary, had not received at 11:45, any answer to the statement concerning the Pall Mall Gazette's announcement, which he telegraphed to Biarritz. The National Liberal Club and the Central offices of the National Liberal Federation have been deluged all the evening with telegrams of inquiry as to Mr. Gladstone's intentions. Scores of personal inquiries have been telegraphed to Mr. Gladstone in Biarritz. Among them several from his Ministerial colleagues. The Liberals in London were disappointed by the statement sent out by Sir Algernon West, as they had all hoped for a plain unequivocal denial. Nevertheless the party managers are convinced that nothing warrants the assumption that Mr. Gladstone will retire soon from public life. The Central News says that the Irish members of the House of Commons are seriously concerned, and the leaders deem it their duty, under certain conditions, to force the situation.

Mr. Campbell Bannerman, secretary of state for war, was expected to make some open statements concerning Mr. Gladstone's intentions when he addressed a Liberal meeting in Dunfermline this evening. His only reference to the subject, however, was a remark about the unexampled indecency of the opposition, who reckoned on breaking down the health and powers of the Prime Minister and driving him to retirement. Their reckonings, he adds, would prove vain.

Arthur J. Balfour, leader of the Unionists, in speaking in Manchester this evening, emphasized the necessity of immediate organization, as, he said, the general election would soon be here.

The Duke of Norfolk also, in addressing a meeting at Dorking, referred to the approaching elections, and urged his hearers to make their final preparations for the appeal to the country.

Vaillant in the Role of His Name.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—Vaillant's mother was allowed to have a half hour's interview with him this afternoon. She was trembling and weeping when she left the prison. Vaillant is calm. He has said repeatedly to his keepers to-day: "Death does not frighten me; I shall walk firmly and fearlessly to the guillotine." He still refuses to see the chaplain, and declares that he will die an atheist. It is certain that he will not be executed to-morrow.

Bismarck's Repartee.

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—While Prince Bismarck was returning from Berlin to Friedrichsruhe on Friday last, a group of spectators at the Wittenberge station inquired as to the Prince's health. Bismarck replied that he had stood the journey remarkably well. "You have an iron constitution" observed some one in the crowd. "Iron, yes, but rusty," retorted Bismarck. His son, Count Herbert, added: "But Dr. Schweigger takes care of his cleaning." It has transpired that the Prussian Premier, Count Von Eulenburg, had a short interview with Prince Bismarck, during the latter's stay at the Royal Castle, last Friday. Prince Bismarck's visit to the ex-empress Frederick was in response to her writing him that if he came to Berlin he should not fail to call upon her. The date of Emperor William's visit to Prince Bismarck at Friedrichsruhe has not been fixed yet, but it is certain to be before April 1st.

Journalists to be Feted.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 31.—A reception is being arranged by the manager of the Vienna Prater to be tendered to the press in Franz Joseph Hall, the concert auditorium, on Friday evening next. Two hundred and fifty newspaper men of San Francisco are invited as special guests on this occasion. Three thousand other invitations will be sent out. The event is looked forward to as a memorable one. The musical features of the exposition are among the most important. Two programmes are rendered at the Prater daily besides a concert in the Grand Court; one by the Midwinter Fair band, under the leadership of H. J. Stewart, and one by the Iowa State band. Various receptions are on the tapis for next week.

The Prendergast Case Prolonged.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Owing to the illness of attorney Trude, of the prosecution, and attorney Wade, of the defense, the hearing of the motion for a new trial in the case of Frederick K. Prendergast, the murderer of Mayor Harrison, was again continued to-day by Judge Brentano, until February 14. Judge Brentano also made a rule on the defendants' counsel, ordering that the proposed affidavits in support of the motion for a new trial be filed not later than February 7th. Prendergast was brought into court shortly before the brief proceedings began. He looked pale and emaciated.

BELLIGERENT BENHAM.

The American Admiral and the Insurgent Admiral Fall Foul of Each Other.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 31.—A conflict between the insurgents and the American fleet is still possible. Admiral da Gama is angry because the young insurgent officers are eager to fight. The admiral said to the United Press correspondent to-day: "It would be better to be conquered by a foreign power, than to yield later to Peixoto." The tug and launches promised to the bark, Good News, were not furnished. The insurgent steamer Parahyba anchored in a threatening position near her this morning, and may fire when she starts in to-morrow. In that case a serious conflict is inevitable.

The Situation Was Extremely Delicate yesterday when the Detroit was beside the Good News. The Guanabara and Trajano had their guns loaded and aimed on all the American vessels, while two heavy insurgent tugs were ready to ram the Detroit. The Guanabara and Trajano together have eight splendid rifles, but when the Detroit fired a six-pound shell into the Guanabara, and Captain Brownson warned them that if another gun was fired, even by accident, he would sink them and advised that they take the men from their guns, they weakened. Benham had the Newark ready to aid the Detroit, while the New York, Charleston and San Francisco were alert to receive the Aquidaban and Tamadare, which were under steam. Benham says to-day: "If Admiral DaGama was contending for any principle or position in which any civilized nation would sustain him, but he is wrong in law everywhere in opposing us." The commander of the Austrian warship has asked Rear-Admiral Benham to be allowed to help in case of a fight. The German naval officers applaud Benham. The English officers naturally are in opposition, while not denying that Benham's position is lawful.

He Ought to Make a Fight

Benham Now Has Two Propositions regarding arbitration, but he will not reveal them. A settlement by such means, however, is at present improbable. While angry at his decision the insurgents comment upon Benham's great courtesy and tact in negotiations. The day before the conflict, Benham notified the city authorities that the water front would likely be endangered. A consultation of inferior officers of foreign naval vessels will be held to-morrow on the San Francisco.

English Opinion.

The Standard of London, commenting on the new situation in Rio Janeiro, says that the only question now is how far the Washington Convention will approve and support Benham's action. If the Convention states no longer abstain from interference between the two factions, it says Great Britain and other interested countries will doubtless follow suit. The Standard remarks that, though such an event may end the insurgents' hope of conquering Peixoto by starving Rio, their success may enable them eventually to triumph. The Daily Telegraph says: "There will be very general sympathy with the American's decision not to permit commerce to become absolutely crippled by the wanton struggle waging in Brazil."

LAW IN CHICAGO.

The Prosecution and Defence Wrangle Before the Judge.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31. The close of to-day's proceedings at the Coughlin trial were marked by an exciting scene. The prosecution and the defense had it hot and heavy for a few minutes. Judge Tutbill arose in his dignity and peremptorily ordered a cessation of hostilities. I was all on account of Lieut. Stiff's alibi testimony for Coughlin. At the first trial he swore that he fixed the time he saw the defendant, May the fourth, by seeing on the spindle late that night, an order from Captain Shaeck to have all the officers visit the livery stables and inquire about a white horse. The fact as that the order was not issued until the next day. Stiffs went back to the witness stand the next day and said that he made a mistake. Attorney Bottum wanted the jury to believe there was no mistake about it, that Stiff was lying and did not know he had put his foot in it until some one told him after he left the witness stand. "This is a trick, your honor," shouted Judge Wing, exasperated at the refusal of the prosecution to allow Stiff to explain. "A small trick, whereamanis on trial for his life." The prosecutor and his assistants were on their feet gesticulating and trying to get the attention of the judge as well as out-talk the defence. "You are full of tricks yourself, you don't want facts to come out," shouted Attorney Bottum, angrily. The judge brought his gavel down heavily and rising in an angry mood shouted, "I will have order in this court-room, proceed with this trial!" The first alibi witness was Michael Whalen, a first cousin to the late P. O'Sullivan, who went on the Chicago police force in 1873. As a detective he was attached to the same police station as Coughlin, the day of the murder and two days afterwards was assigned to travel with the defendant. He testified that he saw Coughlin on the night of May 4, 1889, about 7:45 o'clock, outside the Chicago avenue police station, talking to Captain Schack. He and Coughlin went with Sergeant Stiff to Moloney's saloon and had a drink between 9:30 and 10 o'clock. Lieutenant Stiff, who was patrol sergeant at the Chicago avenue station in May, 1889, supported the alibi. He said he saw Coughlin on the night of May 4th, 1889, as he was leaving the Chicago avenue police station. Coughlin was standing in front of the door; the time was 9:30 or 9:40; he invited him and officer Whalen to take a drink and they left Coughlin in the saloon. Four more witnesses were asked what they knew of Mrs. Hoertel's general reputation for truth and veracity, and they united in saying it was bad.

Warrants in Plenty.

ST. MARY'S, Pa., Jan. 31.—Daniel Coyster, the president of the defunct Ridgeway bank, was arrested this morning on fourteen different warrants, charging embezzlement. He was brought before Justice McKean of this place and, waiving a hearing, was admitted to bail in the sum of $10,000.

PROVINCIAL NEWS.

An ornithological observer says that robins have put in an appearance at New Westminster. Last year they did not arrive till March 17th.

An unusually large number of Christmas presents, some of them valuable, will be sent to the dead letter office from Vancouver through not being properly addressed.

The New Westminster City Council sat till 1:30 a.m. at their last meeting trying to cut salaries, but only succeeded in making a saving of $2,000 for the year. Kicking is general over the reductions.

The lucky number that drew the capital prize of $75,000 in the Louisiana lottery was split in 20 parts and a Vancouver lady purchased a 25ct. ticket from a news stand on Cordova street two weeks ago. The lady who is in humble circumstances gets $3,750 from her two bit investment.

The Retail Merchants Association at Victoria have drawn up a petition for signature by wholesale merchants regarding supplying consumers. It was also decided that the retail merchants should as far as possible confine their purchases to Victoria wholesalers and thus hold business and money in the city.

Charges of accepting bribes to hush up infractions of the by-laws have been laid against one or more constables of the New Westminster police force and the police commissioners decided to discharge the whole lot, from the chief down, to hold an investigation and take back only those whose record is clean.

In lieu of the Dominion Government making over the tidal flat lands of British Columbia to the Provincial Government, the Vancouver City Council will petition the Provincial Legislature to donate to the city the land known as the False Creek flats. These flats are very shallow at high tide and could be easily reclaimed. The level stretch would make a model race course.

D. I. Robinson, the millionaire president of the Atlantic and New England Halibut Co., in a communication to Captain Anderson of Vancouver, the halibut king of this Province, said: "I sampled your halibut shipped to New York. They were in good condition. Keep a sharp look out and keep me posted on the halibut question in British Columbia. If I do not personally visit you, I will send some one to represent me. It is only a question of time my establishing a company in your Province."

Stroebel devoted the night previous to his execution in writing a letter to his brother and sister. The letter extends over seven sheets of foolscap, and contains some very wholesome advice. He tells therein the full story of the crime for which he was hanged and his reasons for committing it. He asks them to show the letter to his father, to whom he had written, but from whom no reply was received. The letter was given to the authorities at Victoria, and will be duly forwarded to the brother and sister of Stroebel.

The C. P. R. operator at Jordan river reports that on Sunday while at Lost river he saw the body of a man in the surf. It was being tossed about in the breakers and it was too rough to get out and recover. Later when the wind went down and the sea became calm the operator searched the beach but was unable to find any trace of the body. He cannot tell who the man was. It is likely that it was some settler along the coast. Lost river is the end of the section of the Jordan river operator, and beyond that point the wire is down.

In the Supreme Court before Justice Crease at Vancouver, argument was heard on an application for the commitment of Carter-Cotton of the News Advertiser for not answering questions in the case of Gordon vs. Cotton. Decision was reserved. In course of the argument the Justice said this was not a civil suit, therefore, if contempt of court were satisfactorily proven, the exemption from imprisonment of a Member of Parliament from forty days before until forty days after the sitting of the Legislature would not apply.

The young man Smith, who was reported missing, turned up at Kamloops on Saturday night at 10 p.m. after five days wandering in the mountains without food. The first two days he was unable to see the sun on account of fog, and thinks he travelled 20 miles in the wrong direction. He burrowed under the snow the first night, but was so badly stiffened with cold, that he could scarcely move. The four succeeding days he did without sleep, travelling almost continuously. On Saturday night his friends heard a shout and rushing to the gate found Smith in an exhausted condition, carried him in and cared for him. His toes and fingers were slightly frozen. Smith's coolness and courage is the only thing that saved him.

That $50,000,000.

Before his departure from New York Secretary Carlisle took extraordinary precautions to avoid giving his impressions of the conference between himself and prominent bankers. One of the bank presidents said that the conference had taken the shape of an informal talk, and that Secretary Carlisle had spoken very freely on several points about the $50,000,000 issue of five per cent. ten year gold bonds. He dwelt specially upon the legality of the issue, insisting that there was not the slightest doubt on that point, and that the courts would so hold. As to the resolution introduced in Congress, with a view to having the issue declared illegal, he expressed the opinion that it would fail of passage. The only definite information obtainable as to the matter of subscriptions to the issue in the city was, that the offer of $4,000,000 by the American exchange bank would stand.

The Highest Authority in America.

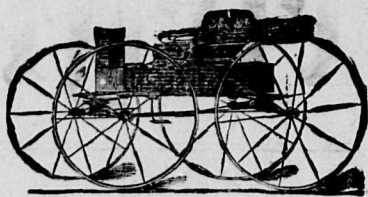

Printers Ink, the highest newspaper authority in America, speaks thus of THE DAILY TELEGRAM:

"Did you ever hear of a place called Nanaimo? It is on the Island of Vancouver and 75 miles from Victoria. If you live in what you consider an enterprising city and believe that your local daily paper is first-class, write to the publisher of THE DAILY TELEGRAM, Nanaimo, British Columbia, and ask for a sample copy of his paper, and when you obtain it compare it with your home production. Go down and talk with the publisher about it afterwards, and ask him why it is that he can't print as good a paper, or obtain as good a local patronage, or have his paper as free from dead-head or objectionable advertisements? A useful lesson may be learned from Nanaimo."

LADY MANAGERS GRATIFIED.

Women of Many Foreign Lands Working for the Fair.

Women of foreign countries are taking an interest in the fair that is encouraging to the lady managers. The latest to offer her services is Mme. Leon Bertault, who is the head of the decorative art division of the French committee. Mme. Bertault proposes to decorate the vestibules of the woman's building, assisted by a number of other women artists. The letter from Mme. Segard to Mrs. Potter Palmer, which gives these details, also states that three noted women musical composers, the Viscontesse Grandval, Mme. Augusta Holmes and Mme. Cecile Chamissade, will play selections from their own works at the concerts to be given in the Woman's building, among them the opera of "Mazeppa" by Mme. Grandval, and the "Hymn of Peace" by Mme. Holmes.

Mme. Diaz, wife of the president of Mexico, writes that the Mexican women will contribute a full uniformed band, besides a department of sweetmeat makers, who will go through all the processes of making those delicacies for which Mexico is famous. All will be dressed as if in their own country. Mme. Diaz, who is at the head of the Mexican women's committee, is taking a great personal interest in the work.

The woman who originated the idea of the Beatrice exposition in Florence in 1890—Senora Carlotta Fernari da Lodi, sometimes called "The Sappho of Italy"—will contribute both literary and musical works to the fair. Her "Centennial" has made her name a well known one, and she is the composer of several hymns, one of which has gained a national reputation.

British women are beginning to send in their exhibits. Miss Ethel Gordon Fenwick, secretary of the trained nurses committee, is now on her way to Chicago to superintend part of the English exhibit.

Among the states the latest to come to the front are Kentucky and Louisiana. The former will make an extensive exhibit of grasses, of which there are about forty varieties, some of them growing to the height of four feet. But the most observed kind will doubtless be the blue grass. Kentucky will decorate a room in the woman's building. It will be finished in fifteen varieties of light woods, according to plans submitted by Miss Ida Symmes. Carved and fret work done by Kentucky women will give elegance to the interior.

Books are being sent in from all parts of the United States and from many foreign countries. Senora Da Lodi gave several books of her poems and Mrs. Leigh-Hunt Wallace sent a bulky package from London. Mrs. Emily Crawford is writing a work on woman's progress in the nineteenth century.

ORCHID TEA.

A Beverage of Which Frenchmen Are Said to Be Fond.

It appears, from a London paper, that Frenchmen have been drinking orchid tea for fifty years, and that the consumption of this expensive delicacy has much increased of late. The orchid from which the tea is made is a member of one of the handsomest and most expensive families—the Angrocum. It grows in the forests of Bourbon and Mauritius, and the scientific know it as Angrocum fragrans. The commercial virtue of the plant lies in the strong perfume of its leaves. The genus is allied to vanilla, and it is only necessary "to touch the fresh leaves for the fingers to remain impregnated with the aroma," which remains after the leaves have been dried. This process is very simple, apparently. No heat is applied and no coloring matter.

The decoction is equally easy. You just lay the leaves and stalks in cold water, about one gramme to a teacup—more or less, according to taste—close the vessel tight and boil for ten minutes. The tea may be sweetened, and milk and rum bring out the flavor of the vanilla more strongly. It is as good cold as hot, and may be warmed up without deterioration. Material enough for fifty cups is sold in Paris for two francs fifty centimes. It is called faham, as in Mauritius.

ALLEGED BAD CONDITION OF THE FRENCH NAVY.

The picture drawn by M. Lockroy in the debate on Monday in the Chamber of Deputies on the condition of the French navy must be somewhat alarming to the French people. M. Lockroy, who is a member of the committee appointed to enquire into the condition of the navy, took a very pessimistic view of matters, in connection both with the navy and with French coast defences.

THE AMERICANS are said to be threatening to take part in the Brazilian row against the insurgents. The young men in Admiral du Gama's squadron are reported eager to fight.

WHEN BROWN, M.P.P., is attending the Legislature, there is a notable lack of virility and virulence in the Daily Columbian's editorials.

THE UNITED STATES MINISTER at Nicaragua has reported to his government serious trouble in that country. Rear Admiral Stanton has been ordered to proceed immediately in the Kearsage from Port au Prince in Hayti to Greytown, Nicaragua.

THE RIOTS of the coal miners of Pennsylvania are still being continued, but not apparently in so violent a form. Work is interrupted at some of the mines, and coal cannot be hauled till the typies, which the rioters destroyed, have been restored.

KHEDIVE ARBAS of Egypt is likely to be deposed before long, for his persistent and inveterate hostility to British rule in Egypt. A London despatch says that opinion at the Foreign Office there points to the early deposition of the Khedive and the succession of his brother, Prince Mehemet Ali.

William Neely Thompson, of New York, representative of the El Oro Mining Company of that city, has been in the City of Mexico for several months pressing a suit against General John B. Fresby, of California, for the recovery of the El Oro gold mine, in the state of Mexico, reputed to be worth $5,000,000.

WELLINGTON ITEMS.
The newly married Mr. and Mrs. Kay, nee Berrigan, returned from their bridal tour on yesterday's train from Victoria. At 8 o'clock last night many of their friends answered the invitation for an "at home," and enjoyed the menu of a substantial supper. After this, the residence being too small for the numerous guests to participate in dancing, they all adjourned to the Finlanders' hall, where the light fantastic toe tattooed the hall floor for many a merry hour. Verily the giving and given in marriage is a goodly institution. There are more, we understand, to follow.

THE PROVINCIAL CAPITAL.
The Government Asked to Expedite the Canada Western.
VICTORIA, Jan. 31.—[Special]—In the Legislature this afternoon the necessity of removing the Indians from the Songhees reserve in Victoria was again made the subject of debate, and of a resolution to the Dominion Government, asking for the removal of the siwash.
Mr. Keith's question, regarding the enforcement of the Coal Mines Regulation Act, of 1890, was ruled out of order on a point being raised by Premier Davis.
Business of the day was light.
Mr. Grant has on the notice paper a resolution asking the Government to do all that is possible to expedite the construction of the Canada Western railroad.

A Demented Suicide.
PORT TOWNSEND, Wash. Jan. 31.—T. Knudsen, a demented Swede, with several gold watches and much money on his person, was taken into custody to-day. One hour later he ended his life in a novel manner by securing one leg of his trousers to the grating in the cell and tying the other around his neck. The unfortunate man is said to have been recently employed at Whatcom, where he imagined some persons there were trying to murder and rob him.

The Old, Old Story.
DECATUR, Ill., Jan. 31.—While playing cards with Miss Maggie Trulock and other friends last night, David Lambert laid a revolver on the table after, as he supposed, having taken out the cartridges. Shortly afterwards Miss Trulock playfully pointed the revolver at Lambert and pulled the trigger. There was a flash and Lambert dropped to the floor fatally wounded. It is reported that she and Lambert were engaged to be married. Miss Trulock is nearly crazed with grief.

Cannonading Mrs. Stanfords' ar.
SACRAMENTO, Cal. Jan. 31.—On Saturday evening Mrs. Leland Stanford arrived at Vina in her private car on a tour of inspection of her property. Yesterday, having concluded her business she ordered her car to be taken to the side track switch near the depot so as she could leave by the South bound Oregon Express, passing Vina at midnight. Accompanied by her brother and her maids, Mrs. Stanford started for her car shortly after dark about 11 o'clock, when a cowardly gang of cut-throats, about ten in number, made an assault on the car which they kept up for twenty minutes, marching back and forth firing revolvers. They made no attempt to break into the car, yet the cowardly assault was such that Mrs. Stanford was completely terrorized and did not dare send any of her attendants from the car for fear they would be shot. By the time the citizens discovered what was taking place, the mob dispersed. The citizens were so shocked and worked up over the affair, that had the perpetrators of the outrage been taken they would probably have been lynched.

A Smoker.
A smoking concert will be given at an early date by the Liberal Club. Mr. W. Marchant will probably be present on the evening in question, when he will be requested to deliver an address on Liberalism and its principles. New officers will be elected on the evening of the entertainment. A committee, consisting of Messrs. A. D. McKenzie, D. S. McDonald, W. Ross and J. E. McKenzie, has in hand the business in connection with the forthcoming entertainment.

Our Serials.
In to day's issue we finish one story, "The Lovers' Stratagem," and begin another serial entitled "Light Out of Darkness." The latter narrative is by the widow of America's Shakespeare of the pulpit, namely, Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, who is a regular contributor to the Ladies' Home Journal, of Philadelphia, and whose pen productions are in constant demand by the leading magazines. This is proof enough that the story will be well worth perusing and preserving. There are 39 chapters extending over about 20 days.

C., at 1 p.m., on Saturday, the 3rd Day of February, 1894, the goods and chattels of the above named defendant, consisting of tobacco, cigars, candy, cider, fruit, toys, nuts, etc., etc. Terms cash.

CHAPTER I.

Near one of our largest cities, easy of access to the business thoroughfares, a stately mansion has stood for many years, overlooking a scene of unusual beauty. Immense resources must have been at the owner's command to enable him thus to realize the conceptions of a faultless taste. Residences are not rare that betoken abundant wealth, but often one can easily detect discrepancies that are unmistakable evidence of unrefined taste and a love of splendor that has outrun the means of uniform gratification. An imposing or showy front is too often united with cramped or shabby outbuildings, and unsightly arrangements in the rear are veiled by some fanciful device too feeble to conceal the secret.

Without the fabled ring of invisibility either a very little imagination would lead to a correct idea of the interior of such pretentious dwellings. Throw back the heavy curtains, seldom allowed to admit free light and air, and the parlors will be found filled, not furnished, with objects of great value and beauty, it may be, but in nowise harmonious with the appropriate furniture or colors of the apartments where they are found. Bargains from some insolvent debtor's forced sale, perhaps, and bought as being "all we can hope to obtain, and they will answer to fill up just here." The owner's eye has never been trained to shrink painfully from such unfortunate combinations.

Pass from the parlors to the dining room. If here the various articles were only suited and arranged with pure taste or for home comfort and enjoyment, how attractive we should find it! How dazzling the exhibition of cut glass and silver, how beautiful the rich snowy damask—if displayed for guests of distinction or fashion! If not, drop these curtains, close the door and pass far back to a wing of the house, the common dining and sitting room—untidily kept and penuriously furnished. The table is spread for only the family. Is that bill of fare inviting? Will anticipations of it quicken a weary husband's homeward steps or call soft and loving smiles to children released from the close air of the schoolroom? Are these carelessly dressed young ladies, idly lounging on the dilapidated sofa, impatiently awaiting the tardy meal, the same, so elaborately attired and brilliant with jewelry, for whom you half lost your heart last evening at the grand ball?

But this is hardly kind. If any prefer fashion and show to true taste and solid home comforts, why criticise their choice, unless by returning to the purer atmosphere which we left for this digression the contrast may "show unto you a more excellent way."

It requires a more experienced observer than the writer to give any just idea of the mansion to which your attention is recalled. You see true grandeur combined with exquisite neatness and gracefulness—the very ideal of home—no touch of coldness or formality, and from the highest turret to the lowest office about the extensive grounds this bewitching harmony and symmetry makes the picture perfect.

Now we will enter and stand a moment in the spacious hall. Look up that winding stairway. Easy of ascent, with many a broad landing, to the lofty dome above all. See how the rich sunlight comes flashing down, gilding those grand old pictures on the wall—lingering caressingly over the fairy statuette in that alcove, gleaming through the bright flowers and luxuriant vines, on these brackets, into the cages near by and waking up the birds to a wider gush of melody—sparkling and twinkling and scattering diamonds on the golden heads, white arms, bare feet of the little rogues playing in that pictured brook or placing a "glory" on the brow of that sleeping babe.

In the magnificent suit of rooms on the right the same refreshing union of richest beauty and softest repose attracts you as you enter. The costly curtains, closed only in the evening, are now thrown far back. The fragrance from "a wilderness of sweets" in the garden perfumes the room, and the free, life-giving sun is shining unchecked over all. Nothing here need shun its brightest beams. It rests on the pure brow of the beautiful matron standing by the deep recessed window, just touches the few threads of silver in her luxuriant hair, gently kisses the still fair cheek and beautifies as it passes.

How richly the heavy silk falls about her stately figure! At this moment, however, we miss the quiet dignity that one is wont to associate with statefulness. One hand plays restlessly with that unpretentious ring on the other, and as her fingers press the golden band do we not know well how her heart repeats the loving words that years ago bound it there? Very precious is the costly diamond, the "silver wedding" ring, given when 25 years of married life have passed, as full of happiness "as human desire can seek or comprehend," but every ray of many hued light that flashes from it can never speak to her with the magic voice of this simple circlet.

How earnestly the lady gazes from the window! The mellow light and fragrant air of the glorious "Indian summer," the profusion of choice flowers, the bright her brow would indicate some anticipated calamity or trouble.

While thus absorbed a tall, noble-looking young man enters and rouses her from this unwonted abstraction. She meets him with a loving greeting, and truly, if his face be a correct index to his character, he is a son for whom a mother may thank God.

A few moments' pleasant conversation follows, but both are restless and ill at ease. At length the young man spoke abruptly.

"Mother, dear, when do you expect my father?"

"I have been watching here for him the last half hour, and surely he must soon be home."

"Do you indulge any very sanguine expectations that our firm can possibly avoid a total failure?"

"If they listen to reason rather than pride and honestly acknowledge their embarrassments, your father thinks a settlement may confidently be hoped for that will not only protect others from loss through them, but secure to each member of the firm a comfortable living, with proper industry and frugality, till this financial storm is passed."

"And surely, for their own interests, they cannot longer hesitate."

It rests on the pure brow of the beautiful matron.

"They seem bereft of sound judgment, and I have no doubt it is your father's efforts to bring them to the realizing sense of the danger of longer delay that so detains him."

"He must be sorely tried at any hesitation at such a crisis."

"Ah, yes. While business is so paralyzed, should they attempt to struggle longer with the adverse circumstances by which they are surrounded, the effort will involve them in irreparable ruin—and, sadder than all else, the blow may fall at a time when they cannot prevent great loss to those who have trusted in them, and thus add to other trials the imputation of dishonesty."

"That is the bitter penalty almost invariably meted out to those who by failure impoverish others."

The young man stood silent and thoughtful for some minutes, while his mother earnestly watched the changes that swept across his face, and as they deepened she fondly passed her arm around him, saying cheerfully:

"Why, George, my dear son, you are surely too manly to despond when for us there are no darker clouds in prospect than loss of property, for you may rest assured no blot will tarnish your father's honor, and therefore if we can remain undivided I feel very little disturbed at the thought of pecuniary loss. I am chiefly annoyed at the anxiety your father may be compelled to endure before he can bring his partners to consent to an immediate settlement. But you, our eldest son, are young, strong, well educated, enterprising and energetic."

"It would seem that you would find more true enjoyment in an opportunity to employ your talents in efforts to build up our fortune anew than in the inheritance of wealth so abundant as to call for no exertion on your own part. Many a one whom God has richly endowed has 'buried his talents in a napkin,' and through the enervating influences of wealth has lived and died a mere cipher instead of the glorious being an industrious life with limited means would have made him."

George for a moment drew his mother closely to his breast, and leaving a passionate kiss on her cheek replied:

"You misunderstand me, mother, dear. Indeed I quite like the idea of engineering my own way in the world. It is for you and my good, kind father that I feel regret and sadness. It is not so long since, but I can well remember by what untiring industry, what patient efforts, your present position was attained. No inherited wealth placed us where we now stand, but the sweat of father's noble brow, aided and cheered by your loving care and skillful management, just as every true American should glory in building up for himself a prominent place in society. And now that in middle age you are among the highest and noblest, where you both are so well qualified to shine, it does hurt me cruelly, my darling mother, to see a change in prospect."

THE LOVER'S STRATAGEM

(By Eric St. C. K. Ross.)

CHAPTER XIV.

(CONCLUDED)

Captain Dudley Smooth now joined the company.

"How d'ye do, Alfred?" he began. "I intrude, I fear! Quite a family party."

"Wish us joy, Smooth," cried Blount.

"Georgina's mine, and—"

"And our four friends there apparently have made up another rubber," said the captain. "John, my dear boy, you look as if you had something at stake on the odd trick."

"Sir, you're very—" cried Sir John. "Confound the fellow!—and he's a dead shot, too!" And it was well the elder baronet recollected this, for duelling was not yet abolished in these islands.

Mr. Stout and Lord Glossmore now appeared hastily, and talking volubly of Evelyn's election.

"Come, Evelyn," said Stout—"you'll support us; we've all the intelligence."

"I'm sure he's of ours if his fortune is safe, for we've all the property," cried Glossmore. "Ah, my dear Evelyn, you were out of humor yesterday—but I forgive you."

"Certainly!" shouted Stout. "What would become of public life if a man were obliged to be, two days running, in the same mind? I rise to explain. Just heard of your return, Evelyn! Congratulate you. The great motion of the session is fixed for Friday. We count on your vote. Progress with the times!"

"Preserve the constitution!" said the peer. "Your money will do wonders for the party!" cried Mr. Stout. "Advance."

"The party respects men of your property!" exclaimed Glossmore. "Stick fast!"

"I have the greatest respect, I assure you, for the worthy and intelligent flies upon both sides of the wheel," said Alfred Evelyn; but whether we go too fast or too slow does not, I fancy, depend so much on the flies as on the stout gentleman inside who pays the postboys. Now, all my politics, as yet, is to consider what's best for the stout gentleman!" he concluded.

"Meaning John Bull," said Captain Dudley Smooth. "Ce cher old John!"

"Smooth, we have yet to settle our first piquet account, and our last!" proceeded Evelyn. "And I sincerely thank you for the service you have rendered to me, and the lesson you have given 'these gentlemen.' Then he went on, turning to Clara. "Ah, Clara, you—you have succeeded where wealth had failed! You have reconciled me to the world and to mankind. My friends—we must confess it—amidst the humours and the follies, the vanities, deceits, and vices that play their parts in the great comedy of life—it is our own fault if we do not find such natures, though rare and few, as redeem the rest, brightening the shadows that are flung from the form and body of the TIME with glimpses of the everlasting holiness of truth and love."

"But for the truth and the love," said Mr. Graves, "when found, to make us tolerably happy, we should not be without."

"Good health!" exclaimed Lady Franklin.

"Good spirits!" cried Graves.

"A good heart," murmured Clara.

"An innocent rubber," added Smooth.

"Congenial tempers," remarked Georgina.

"A proper degree of prudence," drawled Sir Frederick Blount.

"Enlightened opinions!" cried Mr. Stout.

"Constitutional principles!" exclaimed the peer.

"A little humbug," pleaded Sir John Vesey.

"And plenty of money," added Evelyn, when we may rest assured we shall obtain the greatest amount of happiness, and to this end it would be well to level every

“ODDS AND ENDS.”

A Short Story, by Sloan & Scott.

During the month of February we are always busy taking stock, and naturally come across a large number of Odds and Ends. Now you know yourself—or at least most people know—that it DOES NOT PAY to carry goods over from one season to another. You see, those goods that lay on the shelves from year to year, until some of them are almost old enough to vote, are eating themselves up in interest, and interest is one of those things that increase at a most alarming rate, especially if you are not watching it pretty close.

Now, this is what we are going to do. Commencing Thursday, February 1st, we shall institute an immense Remnant and Oddment Sale, and shall surprise everybody by the insinuating manner in which we shall throw stuff out over our counters and tables. You can't but admit that we have given you some big surprises, one way and another, in the past year. But THIS TIME we shall cause the most incredulous to exclaim, "Well, I don't see how they can do it."

Remember, this Sale is only for February, and as there are only 24 working days in that month, you will require to get around about every day while it lasts, so as to reap the full benefit.
